Scope and Content

The collection documents Craig Hugh Smyth's activities as an officer with the Monuments, Fine Arts and Archives (MFAA) Section of the United States Military Government in Germany immediately after World War II. Smyth was the director and officer-in-charge of the Central Collecting Point, Munich. After his discharge from the military, he returned to the United States and pursued an academic life at various institutions, including the Frick Collection, the Institute of Fine Arts, New York University, the American Academy in Rome, and Harvard University. In 1988, Smyth wrote Repatriation of Art from the Collection Point in Munich after World War II, a publication resulting from his 1986 Gerson Lecture at the University of Groningen, The Netherlands.

The collection includes documents created or collected by Smyth while stationed in Munich, including daily diaries and notes, monthly reports, administrative files, and art shipment receipts and lists. It also contains articles and newspaper clippings, exhibition catalogues, publications, and reports gathered by Smyth during and after the war. Of special note are photographs documenting activity at the Munich Collecting Point, and materials relating to Smyth's 1986 Gerson Lecture, including correspondence with former MFAA colleagues, lecture notes and subject files.
